AFIA-500: FUNDAMENTALS OF FEED MANUFACTURING Aug. 1 - Sept. 5, 2023

Sponsored by the American Feed Industry Association and Kansas State University

Q:

Would you like to provide training opportunities to your employees so they better understand the processes involved in manufacturing feed?

Would you like your employees to better understand how to improve feed quality and processing efficiency?

Would you like an effective training tool to improve facility safety and maintenance?

AFIA and K-State have developed educational programs designed to meet the training needs of feed industry employees and professionals. The benefits of e-learning, new methods of delivery and mobile learning technologies have proven beneficial in many industries.

The next online course being offered is AFIA 500: Fundamentals of Feed Manufacturing. The course was developed by the feed technology group in K-State's department of grain science and industry. It will provide participants with in-depth understanding of feed manufacturing. Topics include the process flow from particle size reduction to batching and mixing, to conditioning and pelleting, boilers, post-pellet systems, packaging and loadout and maintenance. Even employees with years of experience in the feed industry will find this course valuable.

AFIA 500: Fundamentals of Feed Manufacturing begins Aug. 1, 2023 and will last a total of five weeks. Course participants may work at their own pace and engage in online discussions about the material presented.

Course size is limited to 35 participants so register early.
